Re: Northland Cable Company/Kosciusko, MS

Gentlemen:

This firm represents the City of Kosciusko, Mississippi. Kosciusko is a city of approximately 8,000 people, located in central Mississippi.

Northland Cable Company, which is owned by Northland Communications Corporation, of Seattle, Washington, is the only television cable company that services the City of Kosciusko, Mississippi.

You will find enclosed a copy of a notice the residents of the City of Kosciusko received advising that Northland would increase its television rates effective January 1, 1993.

The Mayor and Board of Aldermen of the City of Kosciusko have requested that I write you and advise you that the City of Kosciusko objects to these increases.

The City of Kosciusko would appreciate the commission taking such action as is necessary to roll these prices back to the level that existed on December 31, 1992.

Very truly yours,

George L. Dorrill

Dear Sir:

FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY

I am writing in protest to the exhorbitant skyrocketing rates of my cable bill. I am a handicapped individual living on a very limited income and I am shocked at the blatant disregard that the people at TC1 use to hike rates and impose fees that cause people such as myself to have their service disconnected. I am under the impression that the price gouging that's currently done by TC1 is okay as long as its rate increases are approved by City Council and then passed on to the consumer.

The above situation is very unfair. If cable TV is for everyone, then please regulate the industry to where everyone can afford it, not just a select few.

Respectfully submitted

Art Aldson
